WHOLE OF GOVERNMENT RESPONSE:

IMVE:

- As per ITAC:
 - Individuals seeking to participate in a legitimate protest are distinct from actors espousing violent extremism.
 - The most likely IMVE-related scenario involves an individual or small group using readily available weapons and resources such as knives, firearms, homemade explosives and vehicles in public areas against soft targets, including opposition groups or members of the general public.
 - The increase in violent online rhetoric targeting uniformed personnel is likely not indicative of increased intent by IMVE actors to conduct planned, directed attacks against members of law enforcement. Uniformed personnel are more likely to be targeted because of their accessibility in the course of their duties. The terrorism threat to uniformed personnel remains MEDIUM.
 - IMVE adherents may feel empowered by the level of disorder resulting from the protests. This could lead to individuals vulnerable to extremist messaging to commit isolated acts of violence.

Foreign Interference:

- RRM Canada saw no significant change in the last 24 hours, and therefore has no additional input.
- Prominent discussions online about the “Truckers Convoy” have continued to shift, now overlapping with those related to the Emergencies Act. A significant portion of engagement and activity continues to come from US online communities, driven by key US influencers, alternative media and political actors. Given the transnational nature of this discussion, it is difficult to determine exact metrics, but analysis indicates a clear interest among various US communities, including those sympathising with protesters, conspiracy-minded groups, and ideologically motivated networks.
- RRM Canada has also noted a trending narrative around a “bank run” in Canada. The narrative distorts the impact of new financial measures to curb foreign funding, casting the measures as a threat to Canadians’ own personal bank accounts (i.e., banks will broadly freeze accounts without legitimate cause). The narrative appears to be aimed at amplifying Canadians’ concerns around these new powers, as well as spurring Canadians to withdraw funds from their bank accounts in an effort to destabilize Canadian institutions. The discussion on Twitter is currently operating at low levels compared with overall activity. There are no indications of significant foreign state-sponsored interference in this discussion, with much of the activity resembling organic engagement, profit-seeking groups, and key US influencers amplifying the narrative.
- s.38
s.38 continue to engage in the “Truckers Convoy” discussion. These discussions focus on a number of themes including: claims of Canadian hypocrisy, questioning Canada’s commitment to the rule of law, and sympathising with protesters. This continues to operate at low levels compared with overall activity.

Financing:

- FINTRAC is working closely with businesses and its Anti-Money Laundering and Anti-Terrorist Financing Regime partners to implement the new requirements that were announced by the Prime Minister and Deputy Prime Minister on 14 Feb.
- Crowdfunding sites are not a regulated business sector under the Proceeds of Crime (Money Laundering) and Terrorist Financing Act (PCMLTFA). However, should these sites transact with or through businesses that are subject to the Act, such as financial institutions, suspicious transactions may be reported.

CSIS s.38

- No concerns at this time.

SOCIAL MEDIA ANALYSIS:

- Members of the Ottawa blockade that has kept the capital at a standstill for nearly three full weeks are calling the federal government’s use of the Emergencies Act a scare tactic. Link

OVERALL ASSESSMENT: (Derived from information available on open sources)

- The majority of the events have been peaceful.
- Since most government employees are working remotely, the disruption to government activities is so far minor.
